LOUIS LAEGER, CHILLICOTHE, WRECK VICTIM

LEGION WORKER DIES BEFORE REACHING HOSPITAL; ACCIDENT OCCURS ON SLIPPERY HIGHWAY

Fractured Skull Causes Death of Father of Four Small Children; Two Others in Automobile Not Badly Hurt Although Drivers of Truck Suffers Fracture.

DECEASED PROMINENT THROUGH STATE

Served On Important Legion Committees and Was Secretary of Chillicothe Chamber of Commerce at Time of His Death

Louis Laeger, aged 40, prominent Chillicothe man and a leader in the Ohio American Legion since its inception, was almost instantly killed in an automobile-truck collision south of this city at 6:15 a. m. Wednesday.

Four other persons, two in the car owned by Ray O'Leary of Chillicothe, and driven by Laeger, and two in the truck with which the Chillicothe car collided, were not seriously injured.

The accident happened just north of the entrance to the Road of Remembrance on the Scioto Trail. The road at this point is covered by a sheet of ice. Just how the two cars crashed is not known. Benjamin Soloff, 28, of Washington, D. C., who was riding with Laeger, says the accident "wasn't anybody's fault."

OTHERS IN CRASH

Others in the accident besides Laeger and Soloff, a prize-fighter, who suffered cuts about the face when he was thrown through the windshield of the Chevrolet Laeger drove, included:

Arthur Williams, 37, of 652 Moler-st, Columbus, driver of the truck, who is suffering from a fractured left collarbone and cuts and bruises;

Sam Womeldorf of Hamden, O., riding with Williams, who escaped injury except bruises;

Miss Ramona Tyner, aged 22, employee of a cosmetic company, who has been living in Chillicothe, and who was uninjured.

SKULL FRACTURED

Laeger suffered a fractured skull, the back of his head being badly crushed; a possibly broken neck, a crushed left arm and numerous deep cuts on his face. Dr. E. S. Shane, who examined him, said the fractured skull caused his death. He was thrown from behind the steering wheel of the Chevrolet through the windshield and onto the pavement where he was picked up by the driver of another truck and brought to the hospital. He was dead before he reached the hospital.

Soloff, who was able to walk about the corridors of Berger hospital after his injuries were treated, said Laeger was driving to Columbus where he (Soloff) was to catch a train for Detroit. Soloff said he, with Laeger and Miss Tyner, had been working the greater part of the night preparing Christmas packages for inmates of the U. S. Veterans hospital at Chillicothe.

Soloff and Miss Tyner are unknown in Chillicothe, newspapermen there advised Wednesday.

AUTO DEMOLISHED

The truck with which the Chillicothe car collided was enroute to Hamden where Williams was hauling furniture. The truck he was driving is owned by himself. At the hospital after Dr. Shane had treated his injuries, Williams said he had been driving for 18 years and this is the first accident he ever had. His Chevrolet truck was badly wrecked and the coach driven by Laeger was completely demolished.

Williams narrowly escaped death as it is said his truck passed over his body after he was thrown to the road. He was prone on the ground between the wheels however, and was not hit. It is now thought the car driven by the deceased's passed over his body.

Laeger was one of Chillicothe's best known and most active men. He went to that city during the war when he was located at Camp Sherman. He had been commissioned as a captain and was assigned to the depot brigade. After the war he remained in Chillicothe and for a while was in the novelty business. He later took a position as sales manager for the Sears-Nichols Canning Corp., and since September, 1925 he had been secretary of the Chamber of Commerce there.

ACTIVE IN LEGION

His widest activity was in the work of the American Legion. He was known all over Ohio and had headed two of the most important state legion committees. At the time of his death he was chairman of the state rehabilitation committee which post he had held for eight years. He had served from 1922 until the latter part of last year as chairman of the hospital contact committee, resigning a year ago. He was commander of the Chillicothe post of the American Legion in 1929.

Laeger, reported to be a member of a prominent New York Jewish family, was also a past exalter ruler of the Chillicothe B. P. O. Elks lodge.

He had been in the city a number of times in the interest of the American Legion and has a host of personal friends here.

LEAVES 4 CHILDREN

Laeger is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Ingham Laeger, and four small children. The widow viewed the scene of the accident about 10 a. m. Wednesday.

The man's body was returned to Chillicothe during the day by the Cary Ware Co. of Chillicothe. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

POLICE GUARD COP'S FAMILY

Reported Gangland Reprisals Cause Watchfulness; Nitti To Recover.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Frank "The Enforcer" Nitti's gangland followers are out to avenge the shooting of their chieftain.

They have threatened reprisals, it was revealed today when it became known that police guard has been posted at the home of Detective Sergeant Harry Lang, who felled the dreaded "enforcer" with four bullets from his revolver.

The guard was stationed at Sergt. Lang's house when the officer's wife reported that she had been threatened with death in anonymous telephone calls. Mrs. Lang also said someone on the telephone threatened to kidnap her 15-year-old son, Sidney.

CALLED ON PHONE

While her husband lay in a hospital, recovering from the arm wound incurred in his gun battle with the Al Capone gang leader, Mrs. Lang was called on the telephone several times by unnamed men who foretold violence upon her and her boy.

One voice gruffly warner her to "watch out for yourself." Another said: "If I were you, I'd keep close tab on my son."

Although the telephone calls might have been made by cranks, police officials said they expect reprisals of some kind for the wounding of Nitti and were taking every precautions to thwart gangdom's thirst for revenge.

A police guard remained at the Lang home throughout the night.

All officers were ordered to "shoot first," should any of the "Enforcer's" men attempt to retaliate. The Capone mob was warned that a campaign of reprisals will be ruthlessly crushed with bullets.

MERCURY IS UP

Despite the fact that winter was officially ushered into Ohio today the temperature was higher than at any time in the past two weeks.

Snow which has been on the ground since last week was melting and some of the ice which has made automobile driving so treacherous was leaving the highways.

A great abundance of ice still was found, however, bringing forth a warning from Sheriff Charles Radcliff that slow and careful driving is imperative to safety of autoists and pedestrians alike.

Weather forcasters predict rain this evening with a new cold snap expected to strike either Friday or Saturday.

CITY ORDERED TO CONSTRUCT SEWAGE PLANT

Supreme Court Gives Healther Right to Compel Van Wert to Act

FINANCE QUESTION

Tell City Expenses Second To Levies

COLUMBUS, Dec. 21.—The supreme court of Ohio today affirmed the application of State Health Director H. G. Southard for a writ of mandamus to compel the city officials of Van Wert to install a sewage disposal plant.

Replying to the city's contention that it was unable to comply with the order of the state health department for the construction of the plant, because of a lack of funds, the supreme court ruled that the financing of the sewage disposal project "must come first."

MONEY IS NEEDED

Van Wert city officials claimed that if they were forced to construct the plant, there would not be sufficient money left to operate the city government.

According to officials of the state health department, the sewage disposal plant is needed at Van Wert in order to prevent pollution of Town Creek, caused by city sewage, and to save property damages in rural districts through which the stream flows.

Counsel for the city had sought to prevent issuance of a writ of mandamus requiring immediate installation of the disposal plant.

Claim was made that all funds possible to obtain were necessary to pay operating expenses of the Van Wert city government and to retire an existing indebtedness, that the city had no funds with which to construct such a plant, and that it was not legally authorized to borrow money or issue bonds for such a purpose.

EXPENSES SECOND

The supreme court rejected the city's contentions, declaring that current expenses must be secondary to tax levies which were designed to meet mandatory requirements, including compliance with an order of the state health department.

If the city's current expenses could not be provided for within the 15-mill limitation, prescribed by the Ohio constitution, and at the same time allow for payment of bonds which would have to be issued in order to comply with the health department's order, then current expenses "must yield," the supreme court held.

Under such circumstances, the city must take advantage of other statutory means for obtaining additional funds for current expenses, the court ruled.

STONEROCK SUFFERS THREE FRACTURES

The condition of Russell Stonerock, S Scioto-st, is reported not so good. Stonerock is in White Cross hospital, Columbus, suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg, a fractured left arm which is also dislocated.

The injured man who was in Marvin Goed's automobile in an accident early Tuesday has been wearing a cast for the past eight years.

Miss Betty Fissell was returned from White Cross hospital, Wednesday, to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Fissell. She is reported recovering nicely after undergoing an operation.

Marriage Again "Second" As Janet Gaynor, Screen Actress, Leaves Husband

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—In the old conflict between marriage and career, marriage came out second best again in Hollywood today.

Janet Gaynor, winsome little exponent of Pollyanna roles on the screen, and her lawyer husband, Lydell Peck, have separated.

Clashing temperaments and the requirments of their careers brought about the end of another of the cinema colony's "perfect marriages."

In somewhat the same fashion that Ann Harding announced the end of her marriage with Harry Banister, Miss Gaynor gave out the news of her separation from Peck.

Miss Harding and Bannister wrote personal notes to newspaper representatives while Miss Gaynor's attorney, Lloyd Wright, gave out a formal statement on her separation from her husband.

PLAN NO DIVORCE

No divorce is contemplated, at least immediately, by the Pecks.

"Because of conditions over which neither party has any control," Wright declared, "Miss Gaynor and her husband have separated. It was caused entirely by clashes of temperament and the requirements of their profession upon their time. It was simply another case in which husband and wife looked frankly at a situation. Both Miss Gaynor and Peck still

TRAVERS OFFERS MARL SYSTEM TO SETTLE COLUMBUS PROBLEM

Man Who Originated Local Plant Makes Offer To Columbus Dads.

IS NOW AT ASHLAND

Opposition To 3½ Million Plant Grows.

J. E. "Jack" Travers, who introduced the "marl" system of sewage disposal in this city, has announced to Columbus city council that he is ready to submit plans and specifications for such a plant for that city.

Travers, who came here several years ago to have his system installed in the plant owned by the Calcar Products Corp., is now sponsoring a similar "marl" system in Ashland and asks Columbus to adopt his system to fill its needs.

Travers' offer was referred to the service committee.

The disposal plant question has long been a difficult one in the Capitol city and opposition to the contemplated $3,500.000 activated sludge plant is now mounting daily in the city.

That Columbus must do something about the pollution it is pouring into the once-beautiful Scioto River is evidenced in the fact that three damage suits filed by persons who live south of the city have been decided against the city.

Judges Uphold Ohio Act

Supreme Court Gives Support To Criminal Syndicalism Law of State.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 21.—Constitutionality of Ohio's criminal syndicalism act today was upheld by the state supreme court.

The decision was handed down in the case of Paul F. Kassay of Akron. Five judges of the court concurred in the decision. Two dissented.

The ruling of the court was based on a bill of exceptions filed by the prosecuting attorney of Summit-county against the decision of Judge Walter B. Wanamaker in common pleas court at Akron holding the criminal syndicalism act unconstitutional and dismissing the case against Kassay.

ALLEN, KINKADE OPPOSE

The judges upholding the constitutionality of the act were: Chief Justice Carrington P. Marshall, and Judges Thomas Jones, Edward Matthias, Robert Day, and W. P. Stephenson.

Judges Florence Allen and Kinkade dissented from the opinion on the ground that the act violated freedom of speech.

The indictment against Kassay was based upon the allegation that while employed as a metal worker on the construction of the U. S. Navy dirigible, "Akron," at Akron, O., Kassay declared he would "spit" upon some rivets so that they would not hold firm in the dirigible's framework and that eventually the dirigible would collapse.

Kassay is now reported to be in Europe.

COLLIER BILL WINS INITIAL TEST BALLOT

Effort to Enact 3.2 Beer Continues in House as Vote Is Taken

AMENDMENTS MANY

Drys Force Man to Retain His Motion

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The 3.2 percent beer bill triumphed in the House on the first big test vote today 163 to 118.

The vote was on the motion of Representative Sirovich, Democrat of New York, to strike out the enacting clause—a motion which the drys would not let him withdraw after he made it merely to get the right to make a five minute speech.

The militant drys were quick to take advantage of the action of Sirovich who wanted to answer ridicule of his statement as a physician and scientist that beer and milk have the same nutritial qualities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—The House battle over the 3.2 percent beer bill reached the critical stage today with both friends and foes of the measure predicting a close vote on final passage.

A barrage of amendments were to be thrown at the measure. Radical changes in the bill as framed by the ways and means committee were predicted.

AMENDMENTS MANY

The first major amendment was to be a reduction of the permitted alcohol percentage of beer from 3.2 to 2.75 per cent. Adoption of the amendment appeared likely if the drys joined with the "moist" members to change the bill. Some drys wanted to retain the 3.2 per cent in the belief they could command more opposing votes on final passage.

Rep. Vinson (D) of Kentucky, who led the fight for 2.75 per cent beer in the way and means committee, was to be one of the leaders in this drive to modify the bill.

Other important amendments included:

Prohibition of the saloon, granting of permits for sale of liquor with a provision that the permit be revoked if hard liquor is sold with it, by Vinson.

ISSUE LICENSES

Issuance of licenses instead of permits to brewers, legislative declaration that the beer is non-intoxicating, prohibition of importation of ingredients of beer and increase in tax from $5.00 to $7.50 by O'Connor (D) of New York.

Restrictions upon the measure becoming effective pending legislative action providing methods of sale, by placing responsibility upon governor or legislature, by LaGuardia (R) of New York.

Abolition of restrictions upon shipment of beer into dry states on the ground it is non-intoxicating, by Schafer (R) of Wisconsin.

Removal of minimum year's imprisonment for second offense of importation of a bottle of beer into dry state, by Clancy (R) of Michigan.

STARKEY'S WIN FROM WALNUT

Local Team Is Pressed But Comes Through By 40-33 Score at Commercial.

Showing unexpected and unestimated strength the Walnut Tigers made the local Starkey Dry Cleaners sit up and take notice in Basketball League games, before they finally went down to defeat by a score of 40 to 33 at Commercial Point Tuesday night.

All through the entire contest the score see-sawed back and forth with neither team having much of an advantage one way or the other until the final minutes of the contest when the local cagers pulled the game out of the fire by scoring seven quick points to maintain their position of third place in the league.

SHOP VICTORS

The closest game of the evening came in the second game on the card with the Commercial Point A. C. tangling with the Shop Rovers of Columbus in a setto that had the spectators on their feet in the final quarter.

The game ended in a tie and in the overtime period the Shop big guns, Bretz and Hagans, tallied the few points that proved the margin of victory.

In this game the Commercial Point lads proved that before this league reaches the end of the season that they are due to drag one of the topnotchers out of their position.

The opening game of the evening saw the Williams Grocers take the number of the Kirk's Furnitures from New Holland in a fast game that had every one guessing as to the out come. The count gave the Williams Grocers but a small margin of victory.

MOVE TO ESTABLISH T. B. HOME IS BEGUN

COLUMBUS, Dec. 21. — A movement is underway looking toward the establishment of a state institution for the care of tubercular Ohioans.

Dr. H. G. Southard, state health director, and other public health officials have approved the suggestion that the state maintain an institution for the care of tubercular patients on a 200-acre farm situated in Huron-twp, Erie-co.

This land, valued at about $100 an acre, together with $10,000 to be used in connection with the farm in such manner as the state may see fit, was recently bequeathed to the state by the late Myron D. Osborn, a resident of Huron-twp.

STIPULATED IN WILL

By the terms of his will, Osborn tendered the property to the state "for any general use and purpose," but stipulated that the timber on the land should not be cut, or removed, "except such as is necessarily required for general farm purposes."

Osborn explained that it was his desire to "conserve and preserve the timber of said farm as much as is consistent with the use to which it may be put."

The will decreed that if the state failed to accept the bequest within three years, the property would become a part of the rest of the Osborn estate which included stocks, bonds, checks and currency, valued in excess of $200,000.

It was expected that the state legislature, which convenes here next month, will formally accept the bequest on behalf of the state.

The original suggestion that the farm be utilized for the treatment of tubercular patients was made by Dr. F. M. Houghtaling, health commissioner for Sandusky and Erie counties, at a conference of state health officials a few days ago at the state tuberculosis sanitorium, Mt. Vernon.

SOLITARY ONE

The Mt. Vernon institution is the only one which the state maintains for the treatment of tubercular patients.

Dr. Houghtaling's suggestion not only received prompt sanction on the part of Health Director Southard, but was heartily endorsed by many other state health authorities in various sections of the state.

"In event that such a project is carried out," declared Dr. Southard, "the farm might be utilized in caring for convalescents or be restricted to the care of children who are afflicted with this disease."

The health director pointed out that the Mt. Vernon institution not adequately equipped for t care of such children.

Dr. Southard stated that Ne York state recently set as funds, through appropriations the state legislature, for the ere tion of three additional insti tions for the treatment of tube cular persons, under the jurisd tion of the state health depa ment.

Hanefeld Sees Agricultural Recovery In Ohio

1933's Outlook Is Now Brighter

P8 LEAD—1933 OUTLOOK—

COLUMBUS, Dec. 21.—Ohio agriculture, prostrated by the depression, has launched notable attempts toward financial recovery during the 12 months of 1932—attempts which promise to brighten the farmer's outlook in a large measure in 1933.

Efforts of farm leaders to fight back against economic conditions have indeed constituted the major achievements of Ohio agriculture in the year now drawing to a close, believes Earl W. Hanefeld, state director of agriculture

The major advancements in the attempt to restore farming to a profitable basis are listed by Hanefeld as follows:

1. Standardization of products on a high scale to assure the receipt of highest possible prices.
2. Appointment by Governor George White of a milk investigation commission to obtain higher prices for farmers and dairymen.
3. Creation by the governor of "the farm and home protective committee" to save farmers from the danger of mortgage foreclosures which would sweep away their homes and savings
4. Opening in Ohio of a Regional Credit Agency, operated by the U. S. government, for the purpose of assisting hardup farmers who need loans.

HANEFELD HOPES HIGH

All four ideas are innovations which barely started functioning in 1932, but which hold out hope for a general improvement in the early months of the new year, according to Henefeld.

With better prices uppermost in mind, officials in the state department of agriculture employed 35 inspectors this year to persuade farmers that mediocre products must not be placed on the market

Eggs, vegetables, fruits and canned goods were withheld from the metropolitan markets unless they measured up to a high grade In this way Ohio started developing a reputation as a producer o quality farm products.

A typical example was cited to show the result. When eggs were selling for 22 cents a dozen in certain Ohio cities, poultrymen who met the higher standard were paid 41 cents.

The federal government, various farm co-operatives, the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and other agencies co-operated with the state department in the standardization project.

Governor White appointed the milk investigating committee because of persistent reports that farmers were being paid "ruinous" prices by "racketeering operators."

PROBE MILK PRICES

Five leading Ohioans were placed on a non-salaried committee which was given authority to make a thorough inquiry into milk prices. The sum of $1,000 was appropriated by the state legislature for the investigation. Deliberations will be started soon.

Instructed to urge loan executives to prevent foreclosures or properties which had been bought with long-accumulated savings John J. Falconer of Columbus, O W. L. Coffin of Cleveland, A. F Moon of Conover and Carl Watson of Findlay were appointed to the governor's "farm and home protective committee."

The committee's first job was to appoint sub-committees in various counties who were authorized to communicate with mortgagers to urge leniency in dealing with farmers and home owners. A few sub-committees were appointed late in the year, but many more are to be named early in 1933.

Chairman Falconer told Director Hanefeld that the first conference held with mortgage-holders showed loan companies were willing to co-operate to the utmost.

Similarly, the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation did not get well started in 1932. An office was opened in Columbus, and the loaning of money was begun, but farmers did not immediately get acquainted with the opportunities offered them. Security restrictions somewhat hindered the use of the corporation in Ohio.

Ohio in 1932 felt the full brunt of the back-to-the-farm movement. Thousands of former farmers, unable to obtain employment in the cities, returned to the soil.

Those who did return found a favorable year for earning a living from the farm, although none found opportunity to make a profit.

CROPS IMPROVED

Except for a short period of drought, which affected fruits and vegetables, weather conditions were good. Crops, as a result, were as good as the average, or even better.

Anxious to pull themselves out of financial doldrums, farmers were more progressive than usual, Hanefeld says. The state fair, for example, attracted unusually large crowds, and this was largely due to the educational advantages offered, he believes. Even the county fairs—where farm ideas were exchanged on a smaller scale—were largely attended in 1932.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. C.

Beware of Colds NOW!

With Flu in the Air Colds Are Doubly Dangerous

Colds — always treacherous — are doubly dangerous now, with flu reported in many sections. They lower body strength and pave the way for flu and all its serious complications. Heed even the slightest sniffle as a danger signal. It's no time to take chances.

The safest course to follow is that outlined in Vick Plan for better Control-of-Colds. In clinical tests last winter, Vicks Plan reduced the number of spread of colds by half!—cut their dangers and costs more than half! Full details of the plan are in each Vicks package. Briefly it is this:

TO PREVENT MANY COLDS: At that first feeling of stuffiness or nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze—Nature's usual warning that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds. Vicks Drops aid Nature in throwing off the infection that threatens. They prevent development of many colds.

TO END A COLD SOONER: If a cold has developed or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. At bedtime, apply Vicks VapoRub. Its direct double action—continuing through the night—brings quicker relief. During the day, use the convenient Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. They add to comfort—help shorten the cold.

Punishment Not a Cure

BETWEEN a mob lynching and an execution according to law there is little moral difference. Mob hysteria and a thirst for revenge always prompt the former and usually the latter, although the courts and people talk of crime deterrents and social justice and security.

There are a few enlightened and compassionate persons who understand the purpose of law; the others still believe in man's savage right to punish man. Nor are all the judges in the first category.

The assumption that one man of any group of men has the right to punish another is offensive alike to reason and to decency. Punishment for those who offended the powers that be was to be expected only in the days of the divine right of kings, of the robber barons and tyrants. It doesn't become a democracy, however.

Under a democratic or representative form of government the majority rules by the grace of the minority, not by suppressing for men have a right to protect themselves. To confine a dangerous man is just and reasonable, and to attempt his reformation is sensible and decent. And if society had the moral right to kill and torture the malefactor merely for the sake of punishing him, what would it avail society.

Short-Lived Slang

DIFFICULT will be the task of the scholar who a century or two hence attempts to interpret the slang of 1932. He will need more than a "Rosetti Stone."

One can imagine a professor in 2032 defining in learned and wrongheaded fashion a "dumb Dora" as a wise woman, because foolishness has been typified by girls that whistle and hens that crow. "Hit the hay" will mean an alternative form for "make hay while the sun shines." His interpretation for "all wet" will probably be something like this: distinctly dignified, having a reference to "Still waters run deep."

Posterity will have us all wrong, even as we moderns probably have a topsyturvy idea of what our illustrious ancestors thought, said and did. Their recorder sayings may have meant something far different from that which we think their meaning was.

How fortunate it is that slang seldom is perpetuated in enduring literature. A modern novel or history or poem in slang would otherwise be Greek to its own author within a decade. A new slang phrase is picturesque, amusing and vivid for a day and then must pass on into oblivion to make room for the next day's invention.

COPYRIGHT 1930, BY FRANCIS WALLACE — DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Young and ambitious Ted Wynne realizes he cannot ask the wealthy Barb Roth to marry a mill hand, so he leaves his position in the Bellport steel mill and works his way through Old Dominion college. He shows promise in football, and Barney Mack, the coach, takes an interest in him. Tom Stone, star player and Ted's rival for Barb's affections, is antagonistic towards him. Ted, however, is admired by the other students. During vacation he toils in the mill to earn his tuition and prepare for the fall football season. Rosalie Downs, of a neighboring college, discusses philosophy with Ted. She is furious when he laughs at her and calls him conceited.

"I'm sorry, kid," he whispered into her hair.

CHAPTER VII

The cigar had almost burned to the end. Ted suddenly felt like a fool. He might as well leave.

But the door opened and Rosalie came back. She approached him doubtfully, eyes troubled and contrite.

Ted walked to meet her; she smiled quickly and rushed into his arms. He held her close for awhile.

"I'm sorry, kid," he whispered into her hair.

She smiled radiantly, led him by the hand to the piano, played for him.

Rosalie was talented.

"Sorry," Barb said over the phone. "I'm driving with Tom to Pittsburgh for a ball game."

"You're breaking a date," he reminded her.

"This is something special. Can't you come any other evening—how about Monday?"

"I'm working and need my sleep. Sunday's the only morning I can sleep in."

"I'm sorry, Ted."

"If you break this date it'll be the last one."

"Well—if you want to be that way, all right."

"Goodby."

"Goodby."

Barb slapped the phone down and bit her lip. He had a nerve; who was he to talk to her like that? She should give up a trip to Pittsburgh to spend an evening hearing him talk about himself.

But she felt a little guilty, a little sorry. He was a nice boy, if you handled him right, and he certainly treated her the way she wanted a boy to treat her—Ted was safe as a brother; not too exciting or too serious; but better that way than the other.

Still, it had to come. Barb was young, entirely too young to think seriously about anybody or to give all of her time to one boy. Maybe she could like Ted better than the rest; perhaps she did, but it would be a mistake to ever let him suspect it.

And he'd come back; he always did.

Throb! Throb! Throb! Strum! Strum! Ta-da-ta-da-ta-da. Wah-a-wa-ha-ha . . . Shuffle . . . Clap! Clap!

"She's watching you."

Ted danced more athletically. He was in shape and could prance around tirelessly. He felt like cutting loose. Music had piled up in his bones and wanted to run out his toes, run like a whooping kid released from school.

Oompah! Oompah! Wah-h-h-wa-ha-ha!

There was music in the mill, too; in the whirring of the big fly wheels, the revolution of the rolls—if you listened for it; but only Big Fritz could express it with a peel; only Big Fritz with his pot belly, tobacco-colored teeth, hairy chest and thick-soled shoes could move with the poetry of motion.

Ted hadn't come back; he had gone to the telephone many times, convinced himself that he had been wrong; but he hadn't called. For the time being he was blocking cars; it wasn't a hot job and he didn't need sleep, and he had asked Rosalie to the Tennis Club dance.

Ted was proud of Rosalie; she was a gypsy, exotic. It was a pretty dress although Ted never got more than a general impression of a girl's outfit.

"She's following you with her eyes."

Girls were funny. Rosalie and Barb didn't like each other; they had gone to Academy together; Rosalie had skipped a class or Barb had been held back—anyhow Rosalie had gone off to college. She and her mother had just enough to get by. Her mother was society editor of the News.

Rosalie sang as they danced:

"Take some honey from the bee
Mix it up with TNT
And what've you got?
Magnolia—"

Rosalie could sing the blue songs and make you feel things; she was a dancing fool—and pretty. Stone was looking her over. Stone wanted to cut in on every new girl, as if he were appointed to take them over when they reached a certain stage.

Barb floated by, always greatly interested in the boy she was with; when it was Stone, dancing slowly and bending over her like a gigolo, Ted burned up.

Why didn't Barb and Rosalie like each other? They were both good kids although different, of course. You never knew what Barb was thinking but Rosalie came right out with it; she was more like a fellow.

And she could dance; she was warm—got a kick out of it. Dancing with Rosalie was a compelling thing; it took your body and your mind, and then it made you feel something too.

Barb was smooth and airy—a swell dancer and you couldn't lose her, except on a reverse now and then, but Barb didn't pour herself into it; Barb was holding something back—Ted always got the impression of an invisible hand between them, holding him back; Barb's hand; and her face with its curious, taunting, inviting smile.

Going by now, saying: I can get you whenever I want you.

Yeah?

It was time to do something about Barb; make her see that neither her money nor her position meant a thing to him. She was a fine girl and all that; maybe too good for him; but Ted wasn't quite so certain about that any more.

There was an aristocracy of brains as well as money; if you had the brains you could make the money; then you'd have both. He'd seen enough of Barb to know he couldn't come to her unless he was her social equal; that would take time. In the meantime he might as well show her that he wasn't a poodle dog to be whistled at.

Barb didn't like Rosalie; Rosalie was a good scout; maybe it would burn up Barb if he kept busting around with Rosalie.

But Rosalie left town with her mother during August, off to a Lake Erie resort. Ted got lonesome over the week-ends and fought continually against the temptation of the telephone. A broken date wasn't so much, after all, and she had always been on the level with him. He dreamt of her, saw her face in the furnace fires—a shining vision in pastel shades.

But it wasn't just a broken date—it was something deeper; and Ted hung on. Through long evenings of sitting on the porch swing, or in the town park, or talking to Big Red at the city jail or chatting with the boys at the pool room, he battled for his principle.

She had said he couldn't beat her at anything; that was no frame of mind for a prospective Bride. She'd have to respect him before she could like him, and she couldn't respect him if he surrendered.

Faulty Posture One of The Causes of Backache

Carrying the Body in a Slouching Position Is Bound to Have Some Effect on the Spine and Muscles of the Back

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND
United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

"I SUFFER from sacro-iliac backache," somebody just wrote me. "Is there anything that I can do to relieve the pain?"

I receive many letters like this. Some of these sufferers have not been to a physician but they clearly describe their symptoms.

Backache may be caused by various things, but among the most common and important causes is trouble in the "sacro-iliac articulation". These big words apply to the joint between the lowest portion of the spinal column and the hip bone.

This joint is easily dislocated, strained or injured. A fall, lifting a heavy object, a blow or a twist, may injure this sensitive articulation. Persons who are overweight and whose work demands continued standing, bending or sitting, are in danger of trouble in this joint.

To Get Relief

Faulty posture, such as results from standing or sitting in a slouching position, leads to this ailment, with all its discomforts. If you have ever suffered from sacro-iliac backache you appreciate how annoying and painful this condition can be.

The severe pain may come entirely from the faulty posture. The victim may be amazed to find how quickly his discomfort disappears with correction of his bodily posture.

Rest is imperative in an acute attack of this disorder. Complete rest in bed will materially reduce the pain and shorten the duration of the attack.

For those who are unable to take advantage of this method of treatment, strapping of the back will help a lot. Strap with adhesive plaster, starting from the left hip and extending over to the opposite side. Then reverse the process, strapping from the right side. Continue until five or six layers of adhesive strapping overlap each other. In most instances pain is immediately relieved by the strapping.

The pain is due to a spasm of the muscles caused by sudden movements or muscular exertion. The adhesive strapping serves as a tight corset and restricts the movements of the muscles, easing the pain.

Of course this treatment is only a temporary measure. Since the dislocation or strain can be traced to a weakened joint it is necessary that the joint be strengthened. To this end, a supporting brace of some kind is needed. I would advise that you be measured for this brace by a specialist in this work. A poorly fitted brace is more harmful than no brace. A properly adjusted belt or other appliance does wonders.

Of course, backache pain may be wrongly attributed to sacro-iliac weakness. Not every ache in this region can be explained so easily. Certain other disturbances may have the same symptoms and mislead the sufferer. The underlying cause can be pretty accurately determined by an X-ray picture of the spine and hipbones.

Answers to Health Queries

Constant Reader. Q.—Can sinus trouble be cured?

A.—This condition requires treatment over a long period of time before it can be entirely cleared up.

M. G. W. Q.—What causes the ankles to crack when you get up to walk?

A.—Cracking joints are usually due to lack of synovial fluid. Massage the parts with warm cod liver oil before retiring.

Answers to Health Queries

E. R. Q.—What causes a dull pain on top of the head?

A.—This may be due to high blood pressure. Have your blood pressure tested, also have your eyes examined.

F. D. F. Q.—How can I gain weight?

A.—Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. Exercise daily in the fresh air, practice deep breathing. Get regular hours of sleep. Take cod-liver oil as a general tonic.

HIT CHINA MINISTRY

SHANGHAI—China, home of porcelain, seems on the verge of losing the industry to which it gave its own name so many centuries ago according to the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce. The provincial authorities of Kiangsi have imposed such heavy taxes on the porcelain industry of Kingtehchin the dealers say they cannot compete with china from abroad.

EAT AIR SERVICE

COPENHAGEN—Denmark and Sweden are now connected by restaurant plane service, and passengers between the capitol of Denmark, Copenhagen, and Malmo Sweden, may now enjoy air cuisine.

PEAK MISNAMED?

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—Zebulon Pike was not the first white man to view the peak which bears his name. Dr. Archer B. Hulbert, professor of history at Colorado College, recently declared rikes own diary proves he did not discover the peak. In it, Pike tells of meeting James Purcell, a trapper, who had been all through the Pike's Peak region.

CATHOLIC PILGRIMS

SHANGHAI—Over two hundred Shanghai Catholics recently made an early morning pilgrimage to Changan to commemorate the third anniversary of the dedication of a chapel of St. Therese de L'Enfant Jesus.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Complete to the tiniest tube of acid and the last grain of powder!

So technical experts pronounced the biological research laboratory assembled during the filming of the RKO-Radio Picture "Secrets of the French Police," now showing at the Cliftona Theatre, with Gwili Andre, John Warburton and Frank Morgan, today and Thursday.

All the retorts, alembics, odd shaped bottles and shiny microscope that make a scientific laboratory a maze of mystery to the layman, were assembled at the behest of Director Edward [illegible].

The object of course, [illegible] portray that mysterious [illegible] of the Paris [illegible] where dark secrets have been solved the aid of science. It is the of fascinating horrors in the version of H. Ashton-Wo thrilling mesmoths.

But one mystery was [illegible] that might have [illegible] the [illegible] genuity of Arsene Lupin himself. That was the concealed identity of one of the actors in the [illegible].

Occupying a conspicuous role this character had a [illegible] but nevertheless important part. It helped emphasize the weird and uncanny atmosphere of a place where the secrets of the soul are laid bare by ransacking its mortal home, the body.

But no one on the set knew the character's name.

To the property man, who borrowed him from a local medical college, he was just another skeleton.

AT THE GRAND

During the past few years the public has been misled by so-called musicians representing themselves as cowboys or cowpunchers. After hearing one of those bands on the air and seeing it in person, Montana Meech conceived the idea that the public would like to see a real honest-to-goodness band with genuine cowboys. As a result, he has secured the present featured radio and stage attraction. These boys from Bitter Root Mountains offer a complete Western revue, featuring the Montana Cowboy Band, also sharp shooting and knife throwing acts.

Each member of the band is an individual soloist, so a varied program is in store.

Owing to the fact that there is no advance in admission prices you are urged to attend early. This band comes to you as an added attraction presented by the Grand Theatre Wednesday.

Good Intentions Trapped Chain Gang Fugitive

Brother's Plea to Police Revealed Hunted Man's Whereabouts. Famed Author Faced with Return to Bondage He Fled.

ROBERT E. BURNS. MRS. CATHERINE BURNS. EMILIA PINO

Ironically, it was the good intentions of his brother, the Rev. Vincent Burns, that were instrumental in once more placing the hero of "I Am a Fugitive from a Georgia Chain Gang" back in the hands of the law, with a return to his bondage staring him in the face. The Rev. Burns, fearing his brother's arrest, approached the Newark, N. J., police authorities with a plea that they ignore the presence of his brother, Robert, in the city. Up to then, the police apparently had no idea that the hunted man was in the vicinity, but they immediately arrested him. Burns was sentenced to serve from six to ten years in the chain gang on being convicted of a holdup in Atlanta in 1922. He served a few months and escaped. Seven years later, a successful magazine editor in Chicago, Robert Burns was turned over to the police by his estranged wife, Emilia Pino, and returned to his Georgia bondage. He was promised then that he would be pardoned within sixty days. According to the fugitive's story, the authorities broke faith, so he again made his escape. Since then he has lived in New Jersey, working on a newspaper and in a copper refinery, while he labored on the book that brought him fame. The fugitive's mother, Mrs. Catherine Burns, is hopeful that her son will be pardoned this time. She is said to have approached President-elect Roosevelt in Warm Springs, Ga., recently and impressed him with her story.

BRINGS CHEESE

BOSTON—Bottle casting is the newest fad, according to captains of steamships docking here from the West Indies. Passengers are heaving overboard bottles containing messages and then wait for replies.

One New Brunswick boy got an answer from an American girl who found the bottle on a coral beach in Bermuda and an international romance is brewing. A cheese manufacturer put an inducement in his and now has to send a cheese to a lighthouse keeper in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

REMEMBER JIM

NEW YORK—Former Mayor Jimmy Walker, who since his resignation has been called New York's "forgotten man," was remembered by his Tammany brethren and elected unanimously on the Board of Governors of the National Democratic Club.

Now that the scientists have isolated the cold germ they ought to go after the radio soprano germ.

INCREASE COMING

MONTREAL—Strides have been made in the development of the canned fruit and vegetable industry in Canada. Since 1932, the number of plants have increased from 270 to 278, the capital invested from $23,558,689 to $48,152,325 and the number of employes, from 3,577 to 6,329.

ELOPES AT 84

QUINCY, Mass.—A man may admit to being 84 years old, but that's not too old for an elopement. Clinton L. Maitland, 84, a month after a secret wedding to Mrs. Louise A. Regan, 64, revealed their trip to Jersey City, N. J., to have the knot tied.

ASHVILLE SCHOOL NEWS

The eighth grade was given Columbian Achievement Tests last week. Jane Lindsey, with a score of 34, led the class History. A score 22 is considered normal eighth grade work.

Due to lack of electric power we had no school last Friday.

Miss Minnie Dennis, fourth grade teacher, was unable to teach the first of the week. Miss Nellie Warner substitued for her.

The Domestic Science girls gave a fine program for the P. T. A. last Thursday evening.

The Junto Literary Society will give the following program next Friday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock: Christmas music, Girl's Glee Club, Christmas Devotionals, Rev. H. H. Glick; Mrs. Gray's Mistake, Jeanne Price; Harmonica solo, Edward Cummins; Addressing the Christmas cards, Earl Boyer, Georgia Donaldson; Tuckin' 'Em in, Martha Mary Brinker; piano solo, Anna Hay; Hankies and Hose, Charles Roese, Mildred Stout; Christmas Carols, Tina Kuhlwein, Cora Ruth White, and Thomas Rife; Jean's Dream Christmas, Max Borror, Alys Wharton, Kathaleen Creager, Kathyrn Baum, and Mildred Stout.

Last Friday, Dec. 16, the Ashville basketball teams traveled to Scioto, where they split 50-50 on the games.

The girls game was close with Scioto taking the lead in the first few minutes of play only to find the Ashville girls take it away from them and keep it until the last two minutes of play when they again forged to the front and won 14-15. The Ashville girls will have a chance to redeem themselves against the Scioto girls when Scioto comes to Ashville; by that time Pauline Roese, regular forward and Judith Schlegel, regular center are again expected to be in the lineup and will endeaver to give the Scioto girls a real game of basketball.

The Ashville boys had a rather easy victory, winning 40-15. This game was not as fast as most of the boy's games have been this year, but showed a marked improvement in the teamwork the boys have displayed so far.

This week the Girls will meet the Circleville Girls and the Boys will meet the West Jefferson boys at Ashville. Game starts at 7:30 on Friday, Dec. 23, 1932.

Rusty Parker's Orchestra To Play For Breakfast Dance At Elks Club

With music and food, dancing and favors—the Elks plan a gala affair to bring in the New Year of 1933.

Exactly, at 12:30 a. m. on January 2, the whistle will blow—and from then until six o'clock that same morning, dancing will precede a breakfast, which the committee plans to serve to the guests.

For more years than some of Circleville's older folks even care to remember, the Elk's dance on New Year's has been one high point of the holiday season here. "Rusty Parker"—straight from the Deshler-Wallick Grill room—where he is now playing, will provide the music. Known to the broadcasting world and to the land of night club dancing—"Rusty" promises to do all the new song hits, and any special request from any one at the party. His is really a singing band.

And then from 5:30 to 6 a hot, appetizing breakfast—will be served. The unique feature is that the dance starts at 12:30 a. m. rather than the proverbial 10 o'clock. The committee, who arranges this party and answers any questions concerning it includes, Hildeburne Jones, Robert L. Criswell, George Foresman, Dr. R. F. Lilly, Bishop Given, Dr. G. D. Phillips.
